News release

More autumn rain and wind

23 October 2006

Met Office forecasters are predicting more spells of wet and windy weather over the coming week - after many areas have already seen large rainfall totals over recent days.

The heaviest rainfall looks like being reserved for the southern half of the UK, where some areas could see up to 60 mm of rain by Friday.

Heavy rain will cross England and Wales from the south during Monday afternoon and after a respite for some on Tuesday, more heavy and prolonged rain will spread north to all areas on Wednesday. Fresh or strong winds at times throughout the week, with gales in places, will add to the autumnal feel.

Up-to-date information on flooding is provided by the Environment Agency, for England and Wales, and the Scottish Environment Protection Agency on their web sites, or via the Floodline on 0845 988 1188.

Latest forecast for the UK

UK warnings of severe weather

What to do in severe weather

EA web site

SEPA web site

For further information:
Met Office Press Office +44 (0)1392 886655
E-mail: pressoffice@metoffice.gov.uk

Met Office Customer Centre 0870 900 0100
If you're outside the UK +44 (0)1392 885680

©Crown copyright www.metoffice.gov.uk